Notice to Applicants and Residents Regarding the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA)

The U.S. Congress passed the Violence Against Women (VAWA) and Department of Justice Reauthorization Act of 2005, and President Bush signed the law in January 2006. The act was created to protect the lives of women and prevent homelessness. On March 7, 2013, President Obama signed into law the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2013 (VAWA). VAWA 2013 expanded judicial and law enforcement tools to combat violence against victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking. This Notice serves to inform applicants and residents of their rights, protections, and responsibilities under VAWA.

VAWA protections apply to men, women, and children who seek VAWA protection as victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking.

Management will not deny admission for an applicant or evict a resident solely on the basis of the person's status as a victim of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking. Criminal activity directly related to victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking will not be cause for denial or eviction.

An applicant who certifies they were the victim of domestic violence would be allowed to be admitted even with poor credit and poor landlord evaluations if they can show the cause of these negative factors were caused by domestic violence.

Residents who are victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking can have access to the criminal justice system without facing eviction. Where a resident is abusive to other members of the household, only the abuser may be evicted. Residents facing violence can be allowed early lease termination for a matter of safety. Reasonable confidentiality measures shall be implemented to ensure that the landlord does not disclose the location of a victim to a person who commits an act of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking.

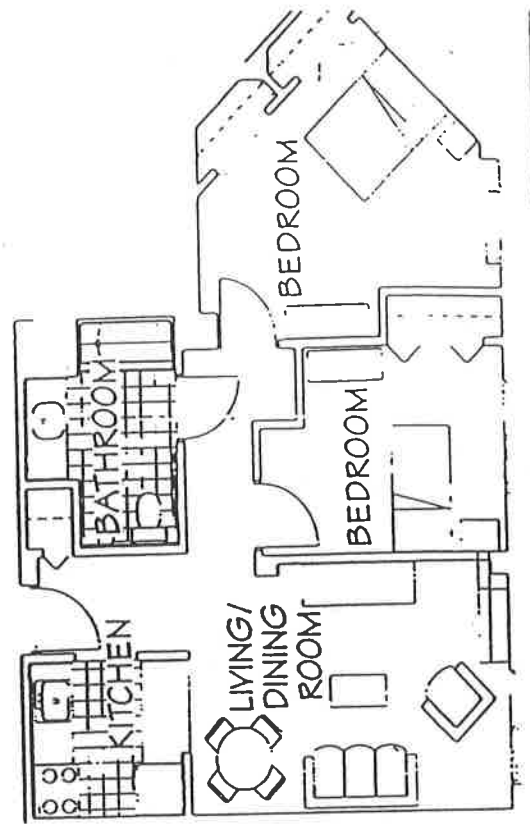

Victims may be asked to certify their status as victims and that the incident in question was a bona fide incident of domestic violence by presenting appropriate documentation to management.

Any information submitted to management regarding domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking will be kept confidential unless the landlord needs to use the information in an eviction proceeding to evict the abuser, a law requires the landlord to release the information, or the applicant or resident consents in writing.

If you have additional questions, please feel free to contact the management office. We are dedicated to your safety and continued enjoyment of your home in our community.
